

The State of Texas, §
County of Houston. §

Pending in the County Court of Houston County, Texas.

On this the 7th day of April, 1915, came on to be considered the question of the Northern boundary line of Houston County, Texas, which is also the southern boundary line of Anderson County, Texas, and it appearing to the County Court that said boundary is not sufficiently definite and well defined, and it further appearing that Anderson County and Houston County both wish said line actually surveyed on the ground and established and marked:

It is therefore ordered, adjudged and decreed by the County Court of Houston County, Texas, that O. C. Wakefield and Jno. H. Ellis, both experienced and competent practical surveyors, be and they are hereby appointed to represent Houston County in making said survey, and they will go on the ground, with the surveyors from Anderson County and make and establish the lines and corners, and they are directed to run and mark the whole of the boundary line between Anderson County and Houston County, which is the whole Northern boundary line of Houston County. Said surveyors are further directed to establish said line and mark same in the manner and form provided by law, and make due report thereof to this Court.
