Lake LBJ

Lake LBJ makes its way through the framework of tree covered hills and granite cliffs for 22 miles between Inks Dam, upstream to Wirtz Dam at the lower end. Fishermen find this lake a place where the fish really bite! As the lake winds its way from dam to dam, it is broken by numerous caves and outstanding "fishing holes." There are 6300 surface acres (ten sections) of clear, unobstructed waters protected from high winds which is a delight to skiers. The smallest boats are safe.

The majority of accommodations on the lake are located in or near Kingsland. Other accommodations are located at Sunrise Beach, below Kingsland and Wirtz Dam. In Kingsland, where the Llano meets the Colorado, are over 15 modern resorts, lodges, motels and R.V. facilities. Shopping • Restaurants • Golfing • Boating • Skiing • Fishing • Sightseeing • Hunting • Relaxing • Retirement • or a home away from home in the many subdivisions developed along the lake.

Lake Buchanan

Lake Buchanan, first of the famous Highland Lakes, boasts the largest surface area of any of the lakes and one of the largest multiple arch dams in the world, Buchanan Dam. A large selection of resorts, fishing docks, land developments, and parks make this lake a highly desirable place for family recreation. A large area of resorts and businesses are located near the dam and on upper Lake Buchanan at Tow, Texas. Public boat launching ramps are located at Black Rock Park, also excellent for camping and picnicking. Fishing is always excellent on Lake Buchanan and equipment can always be rented. Many land developments, summer homes, and permanent residences line the shores of this lake, sometimes resembling a big bay or ocean due to its 8 mile width. The dam is 150 ft. tall, 11,200 feet long and the lake is 32 miles long.

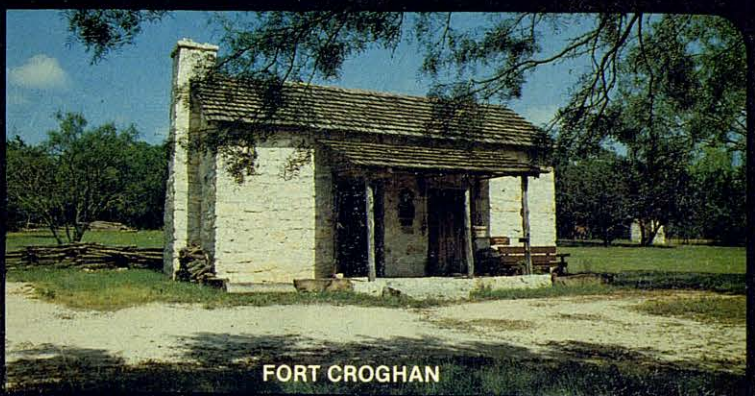

Lake Inks

Lake Inks is a small, placid lake, highlighted by resorts, marinas, lake homes, and Inks State Park, the largest public camping area on the lakes. A nine hole golf course makes this area highly desirable. Nearby is the city of Burnet, Fort Croghan, and Longhorn Cavern. Roy Inks Dam is 99 feet tall, 1,550 feet long, holding back 3 miles long Inks Lake. Packsaddle Mountain, the site of the last Indian battle in Texas, frames the horizon to the Southwest.

BURNET

POPULATION 4300

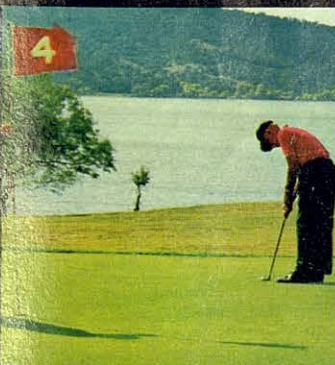

Burnet is located in the heart of a wonderland of lakes and hills in Central Texas. The facilities for fun and relaxation in this area are truly unlimited.

The 76,000 surface acres of fresh water in the five Highland Lakes to the south and west of Burnet provide a fabulous playground for all the popular water sports. There is a U.S. Fish Hatchery on Lake L.B.J. which assures well-stocked waters with such as black bass, white bass, catfish, trout, striper bass, salmon, walleyes, northern pike, and perch for some of the very best fresh water fishing. The Highland lakes feature excellent facilities for swimming, boating, and camping. Camper hookups are available in Burnet and near Inks State Park.

Aside from the obvious attraction of water sports on the Highland Lakes, the entire area surrounding Burnet is widely known for the abundance of such game as deer, turkey, doves, quail, and ducks. Each year during the hunting seasons, sportsmen gather from all over the southwest to enjoy the excellent hunting in the Hill Country around the Burnet area.

Burnet and the surrounding area is rich in historical attractions as well as scenic countryside, golf courses, parks and picnic areas, and of course famous Longhorn Cavern is nearby. No visit to the Burnet section of Central Texas is complete without going to Longhorn Cavern State Park and enjoying a guided tour through expertly lighted underground formations. Outstanding Tourist Accommodations are plentiful throughout the entire area with some of the best hotels, motels, restaurants and coffee shops located in Burnet. Burnet also boasts of modern shopping conveniences usually found only in larger cities.

Lake Austin

Lake Austin is 22 miles long, and is contained wholly within the city limits of Austin. Beginning with the cold waters emitted from Mansfield Dam, the lake meanders through tall hills on either side, past several large park lands and private housing developments in Austin and West Lake Hills. Tom Miller Dam, which is situated in a residential area less than 5 miles due west of the State Capitol Building, is 100 feet tall, and 1,590 feet long.

RIVERBOAT COMMODORE ON LAKE AUSTIN

The two city-owned access areas to the lake are the Walsh Boat Landing on Lake Austin Blvd., just above the dam. This is easy access for anyone with a boat who chooses lodging in the downtown area. Lake Austin City Park is a large park located off FM 2222 to the northwest of the city. Here are facilities for fishing, boating, picnicking and camping. There is an admission fee during the summer months.

Several outstanding views of the lake are easily accessible. One is Mt. Bonnell, the highest point in Austin. One hundred easy steps lead from the parking lot to the top of the Mount. The view of the hills opposite, lakeside homes, and perhaps a skier on the water is well worth the climb. Scenic Drive, which follows the contours of the lake, offers several pretty glimpses of the water. Two riverboats are available to groups wishing to charter a tour of the lake by water.

Town Lake

Town Lake is completely surrounded by the city of Austin. The lake runs for five miles across the width of the city, coming within 11 blocks of the Capitol grounds.

Town Lake is the setting for many major festivals and city-wide events. The Aqua-Fest in August, the SportsFest in March, and the July 4th Symphony Performance and Fireworks Display all take place on the shores of Town Lake.

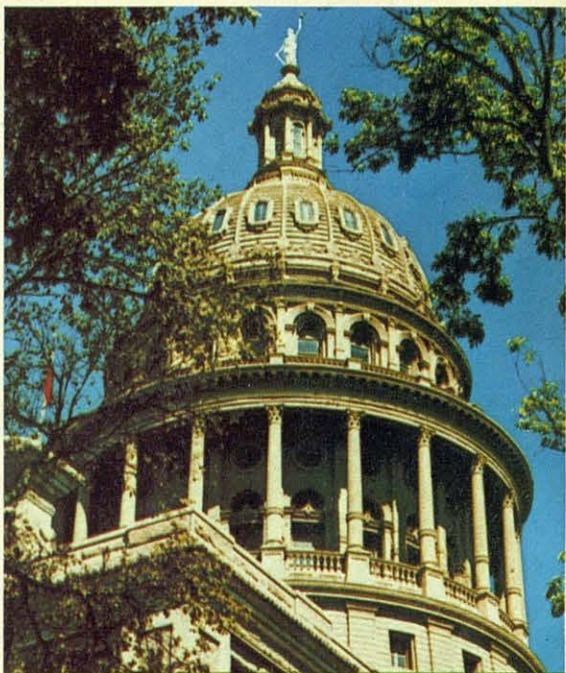

Most of the shore line is public park, lined with over 15 miles of hike and bike trails. There is no swimming or motor boating allowed on Town Lake. However, there are concessions for canoe and sailboat rentals by the hour.

Three large hotels, with a 4th one being built, are on the shore of this lake.

Real Estate

Looking for a summer cabin, a retirement cottage, a weekend hideaway, or year-round living—you can find them in the Highland Lakes. There are planned subdivisions, retirement villages, individual properties . . . offering lake side lots to ranch estates. There's land, lots of land and you don't have to be fenced in. You can build your own or move right into a new one that's waiting for you. Contact the real estate dealers listed in the brochure for additional information.

Fishing

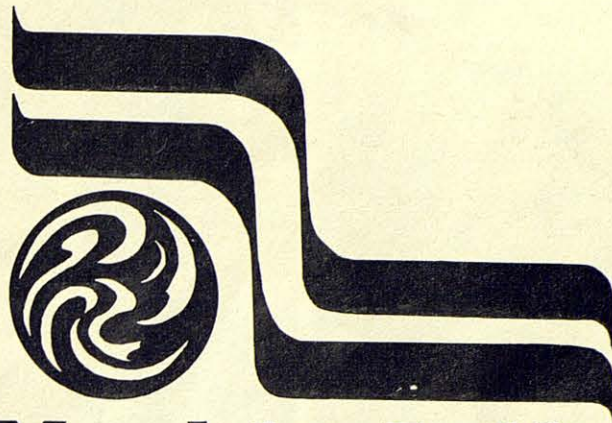

The big ones bite in the Highland Lakes—Black Bass, White Bass, Crappie, Catfish, Perch. You can land them from a boat in a quiet cove, cast from the banks, pull them in on a trot line, or enjoy the comforts of home in one of the many baited fishing docks on the lakes. Many of the lodges listed on pages 18 & 20 offer facilities especially designed for the fisherman. Guides are available to take you to the best "holes." Boats and motors are available along with live bait and equipment. The fish are always there because a planned stocking program is carried out on all the lakes throughout the year. You must have a Texas fishing license, which may be obtained from area businesses.

Boating

With 150 miles of water wonderland, there is boating activity for all on the Highland Lakes. There are 8' prows to 70' cruisers plying the blue water with each Captain and crew enjoying the highland scenery that surrounds them. For planned activities there are yacht clubs, boating and ski clubs with cruises, tournaments and exhibitions scheduled throughout the year. There are launching ramps in the public park areas, and at most of the private lodges, resorts, marinas, and camping grounds. Beach areas are available for picnicking, sailing, and skiing. For your convenience, fueling docks and repair stations are on the water. Rental boats are available for sailing, fishing, skiing, parties, and even spending the weekend on the water. All of this combined with paved access roads make the Highland Lakes the "Top Spot for Fun" on your boating vacation.

Recreation

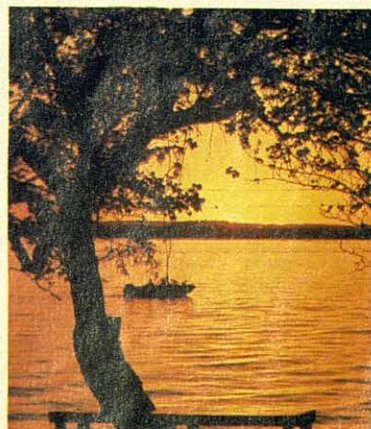

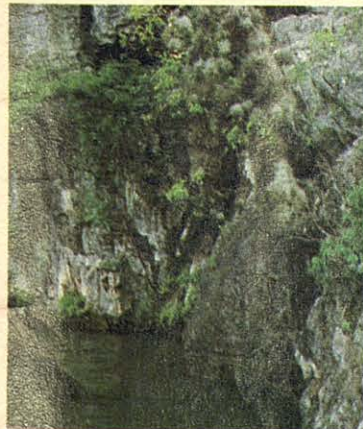

Activities in the Highland Lakes are not limited to fishing, boating, and skiing. You can take a sightseeing drive through the Hill Country, stopping by some of the sites listed on page 17. There are large public parks ideal for hiking and picnicking. The community festivals described on page 5 offer unique entertainment. Or if golf is your sport, there are 15 courses scattered through the lake area offering a variety of courses ranging from flat to incredibly hilly, from open to heavily wooded, or with a view of the lake. They are all waiting for you in the Highland Lakes.

Lake Marble Falls

Lake Marble Falls, confined by sheer bluffs of limestone and marble, is a beautiful lake appealing to all who like quiet, unruffled bodies of water. While only seven miles long, this lake, in its beautifully picturesque settings, has become one of Highland Lakes' most popular fishing and boating bodies of water.

Like the other areas of the Highland Lakes, the Marble Falls region is very rich in historical lore. For example, from nearby Granite Mountain came the building materials for the State Capitol Building in Austin . . . for the Galveston Seawall, and for many other important stone structures within the State. This big quarry is still being worked for many an important facility.

The town of Marble Falls, itself, built upon the bluffs of Lake Marble Falls, is a fast-growing community which monthly attracts more and more people who seek the atmosphere, the climate and the Lakes Region as a place to retire for permanent residence.

In 1887, General Adam Johnson plotted the townsite of Marble Falls and began selling lots. The population is now 3,000. The city is noted for its Texas Pink Granite Quarries, the stone used to build the State Capitol. Hunting, fishing, boating, camping and outdoor recreation are enjoyed the year 'round. Lake Marble Falls is a placid lake and is surrounded by beautiful lake homes, fishing docks and overnight accommodations.

Marble Falls City Park, located lakeside, is an ideal place to camp, or go boating, fishing, or skiing. Max Starke Dam, 90 feet tall and 860 feet long, holds back the 7 mile lake. A public boat launching ramp is located next to the bridge over Lake Marble Falls within the city limits.

Lake Travis

Giant Lake Travis is the longest of the Highland Lakes Chain. It is 65 miles long, and at the widest point is 3 miles wide. It twists and turns, following the path of the Colorado River, sometimes almost turning back upon itself. Another major river, the Pedernales, empties itself into Lake Travis. Mansfield Dam, at the base of the lake on FM 620, is 6810 feet long and has a spillway elevation of 714 feet. When the lake is at this elevation, it contains 2 million acre-feet of water. The view from the dam overlooks one of the deepest, widest parts of the lake.

Camping, picnicking, and swimming spots abound on Lake Travis. There are over 1800 acres of county-operated LCRA parks, the largest of which is Pace Bend (known locally as Paleface Park). All five county parks have access to the lake for swimming & fishing, and have restroom and water facilities. Most offer primitive camping on a first come, first served basis. For electric hookups or cabin facilities it is necessary to contact a privately owned camp.

There are five public boat launching ramps, two in Pace Bend Recreation area, and one each in Arkansas Bend, Travis County Park at Mansfield Dam, and Cypress Creek Park. There are at least a dozen other places to put a boat in the water at the resort developments, marinas, and camping areas.

Excellent marinas on the lake cater to the need of the fisherman and boater with bait, food service, gasoline, and boat rentals.

Scuba divers like the clean, deep waters of Lake Travis especially near the dam area. For the inexperienced, scuba classes are available.

Sailing enthusiasts love the wide areas of Travis for sailing. Boat and sailing clubs sponsor sailing regattas throughout the year. For those needing a sail boat and or instructions, several marinas have them.

Several major resorts such as Lakeway and World of Resorts (Lago Vista) are located on Lake Travis and offer such amenities as golfing, horseback riding, tennis, marinas, and country club facilities to their guests. Jonestown, Volente, Spicewood and other small communities enjoy part of the 250 miles of shoreline of Lake Travis.
